

Kanban as it should be. Not as it has been.

Let's be honest: every issue and idea tracking tool you loved slowly morphed into boring, sluggish, corporate bloatware.

Trello put on 40 pounds of cruft. Jira started charging by the migraine. Asana tried to become everything to everyone. GitHub Issues slid into a steady state of decline.

Name one that got better last year. Exactly.

It's time to turn the page.

Introducing Fizzy — a modern spin on kanban for tracking just about anything. Bugs, issues, ideas, small projects, it fits them all.

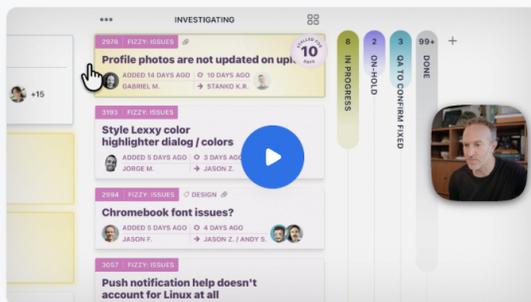

Fast, straightforward, and vibrant, it's a blast of fresh air in a shockingly stale category.

We invite you to poke around and use Fizzy to track 1000 things for free. I'm glad you're here, and I'd love to hear what you think.

Little things, big difference.

Auto close prunes old cards for you. Webhooks let you publish to Slack or Campfire. Your notifications stack fans open for easy access. Information bubbles up when cards are ignored. Make a board public so anyone can follow along. Stamps tell you who filed what when.

Track 1000 cards for free. No time limit, no user limit.

If you'd like to keep using Fizzy past 1000 cards, it's only $20/month for unlimited cards + unlimited users. Cancel anytime, no risk.
